G John Berger

The curiously-named G. by John Berger won the Booker Prize in 1972 as well as the James Tait Black Memorial Prize. Wikipedia has very little to say about the book so although there is a bit of chat about it here on GoodReads I presume that it isn't widely read and nobody feels confident about writing the definitive entry about it for Wikipedia.

G. by John Berger

G. is a 1972 novel by John Berger, set in pre- First World War Europe, and its protagonist, named "G.", is a Don Juan or Casanova -like lover of women who gradually comes to political consciousness after misadventures across the continent.

G. (novel) - Wikipedia

John Berger's prose moves magisterially through a number of cohesive and well-wrought registers in this beautiful novel, where the historical and the individual unite in highly unusual fashion. This is the story of "G," a latter-day Don Juan who conquers women just as rapidly as the century seems to incline towards disenchantment.

John Berger's extraordinary novel won the Booker in 1972. We follow episodes in the life of the eponymous G. through his sexual liaisons and 'conquests' in the late 19th and early 20th century. Whilst the text is overtly sexual, occasionally accompanied by line drawings of human genitalia, this is not a work of 'erotic' fiction.
