The Evolution And Legacy Of

Evolution is a communal process, not the individualist endeavour of Victorian capitalism and Charles Darwin; nor its modern development in social gene theory. The prime objective of eco-systems is, after survival, stability, which is an emergent property essential for the evolution of characteristics and behaviour: nothing can evolve if its ...

Darwin, Expression, and the Lasting Legacy of Eugenics. If evolution is seen as the study of unseen development, the camera provided the illusion of quantifiable benchmarks, an irresistible proposition for the advocates of eugenics. The Austrian-born Bernard Hollander favored a quantitative approach to phrenological diagnosis, and is shown here methodically measuring his own skull.
